- STEP 5: When you complete the registration you will receive a message from our vendor Imagination Library directing you to check the email address that you provided as they will be sending your account information to that inbox. Once your child's registration application has been reviewed, you will be notified via email informing you if your child has been approved or if perhaps their application was denied (along with a reason for denial). If you receive a notification informing you that your child's registration has been approved, please allow 6 to 9 weeks to begin receiving books.

Can I register my niece, nephew, grandchild, etc., even though I am not their parent or guardian?

No. You must be the child's parent or legal guardian to register them for this program.

How will my child receive their books?

All books will be delivered to the address you provided us at registration by the US Postal Service. If the book does not fit in your mailbox or the post office is unable to deliver your book for any other reason, you will be left specific instructions on how to retrieve your books from your local post office. If you believe that you are having issues with your delivery please confirm that you have the correct address listed in your account information and then contact the post office closest to your home. DCPL is not responsible for lost or stolen packages and will only distribute books once a month.

What happens if I move?

If you move, please log into your account to change the primary address you have listed there. Please keep in mind if you do not have an address for you child within the District of Columbia, you will no longer be eligible to receive books. Please allow up to 30 days for changes to your account to be reconciled. Imagination Library is a national program working with communities nationally and internationally to provide children with high quality reading material. Check their website to see if Imagination Library has an affiliate where you live.

When will my child stop receiving books?

Upon turning 5 years of age, your child will stop receiving his/her monthly book. In addition, if your child moves to an address outside the District of Columbia, they will no longer be eligible to receive books from this program. If you do move, we encourage you to check with our vender Imagination Library to see if there is an affiliate where you will be relocating.

What if I have more than one child who is eligible?

As long as your children are under the age of 5 and live in Washington, D.C., they are eligible for the program. Regardless of the amount of eligible children in your household, every eligible child will receive their own book each month. To register more than one child, simply repeat the resitration process by filling out the form again and include the information for the child you have yet to register.

What kinds of books will you be sending?

Children will receive books that are appropriate for their age. Books are selected by professionals who choose books that reflect a diversity of people and cultures, and that promote self-esteem and a love of reading.

Is there a registration deadline?

No. Registration is ongoing. However, please keep in mind that only children under the age of 5 are eligible to receive books. If your child is older than 5 at the time of registration, they will not be eligible for the program.

What can I do if my child is NOT eligible for the program?

If your child is too old or does not live in the District of Columbia, there are still plenty of ways that you can use your local library to help your child become a better and more active reader. Please see some helpful tools and tips for children ages 5-8. We also encourage you to attend

our story time events with your child. In addition, check Imagination Library's website to see if there is an affiliate program where you live.

What if I no longer want my child to receive free books?

If you no longer want to receive books, you can log-in to your account and select to discontinue your book delivery at any time.

What do I do when I'm done with my books?

We believe these books have great value. Many times children will want to read books over and over again before completely moving on from them. Books also find value when passed along to family and friends. If you want to donate your books once you are done with them, please see our preferred donation methods here.

Will you be providing books in Spanish? Can I request Spanish books?

At this time we are not able to offer bi-lingual English/Spanish or Spanish language books through the Books from Birth program. The DC Public Library has a wonderful selection of Spanish-language children's books in our collection; we invite you to enjoy the recommendations on this list, explore our catalog, and connect with your neighborhood librarian to discover more.

Additional resources for Spanish speakers include instructional videos like this one. Spanish speaking participants in Books from Birth will have access to a vast library of instructional material through our partnership with Ready Rosie. Families must sign up for Books from Birth to gain access to Ready Rosie content. In addition, we have a parent tip brochure and parent workshops which provide guidance to Spanish speaking families on how to use these books even though they are not in their native language.

Can I sign up for Books from Birth without an email address or phone number?

To successfully fill out an application for Books from Birth through the online form, you must provide either a preferred email address or a phone number. If you do not have an email address or a phone number, please contact us and we will register you manually. PLEASE NOTE: The DC Public Library will never use your personal information for anything other than communication about the Books from Birth program or to share early literacy information related to the program. Without valid contact information on record you will not be able to personally manage your account nor will the library be able to contact you regarding any problems with your book delivery or changes in your eligibility. In addition, many of the benefits of this program will be delivered electronically such as; helpful tips and resources for parents, invitations to free Books from Birth events, and important updates about the program. Keep in mind that you can opt out of communication from the Books from Birth program at any time.
